Chapter 1 by Sophia Mathis

I ran through the ship bay searching for the Falcon or an X-Wing. Anything, anyone that could get me away from here. I just had to escape the Resistance. I only came here to try and find my parents, to find a place to belong. Even after the war with the First Order, I wasn't looked at as an ally here. I just don't belong. Luke won't train me because he is afraid of losing his students to the Dark Side, and he has disappeared again. This time, there is no map, no trace that he was ever even here. So, now I must go, and where the journey may lead me I don't know.

As turn the corner I see some Resistance mechanics crowded around a ship and I know that this is my only chance. I sneak up from behind and hit the man on the head. Hard. He falls to the ground without anyone even noticing. The two others are still working and I sneak around the ship and climb inside. I shut the entrance and lock it, sprint to the front of the cockpit and start up the ship. I fly out of the ship bay and don't look back.

I know where I am going and who I will meet.

I am going to the First Order's Base on Alderaan and I am asking Kylo Ren to teach me in the ways of the Dark Side.

It wasn't long after that I had a feeling someone was waiting for me. I could tell it wasn't just anyone, but he was wearing old Sith armor. I approached the base cautiously, mindful of this man who was watching me.

There were two guards posted out side of the doors and they beckoned me becomingly. I was ten feet away from them when I sensed an evil presence approaching me from behind and a hand grabbed me by my hood and yanked me back. I watched as the two guards charged towards the man who hand grabbed me, their blasters aimed at his head. He extended his palm towards them, and I heard a sickening crack as their necks were broken.

I kicked and screamed bloody murder as the man dragged me away. His hand shot over my mouth, quickly silencing me. He leaned down and I widened my eyes at the deepness and age of his voice. "Hush. I'm here to guide you away from this place. If you stay, Ren will not guide your powers properly and you will fall in battle. Come with me willingly and I will teach you the proper ways of the Sith." I was soothed by his voice and relaxed. I worked around his hand as I managed to free my jaws.

"W...who are you?" I asked, slightly terrified.

"My name is Dendren," he said, allowing me to stand on my own. "And I am your new master. If you stay, your future will only grant failure and certain death."

Chapter 3 by Sophia Mathis

Kylo pulls Sophia close and kisses her gently.

"Dendren." A thundering voice says.

"Impeccable timing, Ren."

Dendren says as Kylo steps from the shadows and ignites his saber. The fiery red glow penetrates the darkness and bathes us all in eerie red light.

"You won't steal her away that easily." Kylo says.

"Oh, but maybe I won't have to.... Sophia, who do you want to go with?"

I looked into his eyes and he seemed so convincing. I want to go with him and everything will be alright. Just me and him, forever and ever.

Abuptly, Kylo says,

"Sophia you are stronger than you think you are. Do you see the deceit in his eyes?"

I look back into his eyes, this time more focused, I could sense the magic working to turn the tables to his favor.

“You flithy little coward!” I yelled angrily.

I kneed him in the groin then punched him in the face, he fell to the ground in pain. He stood up after a few long moments and said,

“You won’t get her back that easily Ren.”

He drew his red lightsaber and slashed at Kylo’s arm. He blocked the attack easily. They fought tirelessly, up stairs, though hallways, back down stairs... I am beginning to want to leave here when Kylo speaks into my mind,

“It’ll be over soon I promise.”

I jump at the sound of his voice in my head.

“You’ll get used to it.”

Finally, Kylo has Dendren hanging above him in a Force choke and he snaps his neck without flinching. he drops the body and only retrieves Dendren's Sith style lightsaber from the floor and clips it onto his belt.

He walks over to me. He’s so much taller, cloaked in black with a beat up but sleek helmet. I stand up as he takes his helmet off and I am not prepared for what I see next. My jaw drops open and I stare for an akward few seconds at his handsome face, his deep brown eyes and shiny black hair. Soon we are face to face, and he says,

“We will start training tomorrow.”

I smiled and said

“Yes, Master.”

He smiled back and gently grabbed my chin and gave me a kiss on my lips.

A red blade flew past my vision, a purple blade meeting it with a loud clash. Ren and I were inside of the base and I noticed cloaked forms battling with amazing tactics. Their bodies moved in ways I couldn't dream of, they growled and snarled with effort. One was a Twi'lek with pale green skin and a ring in his nose, his muscles ripping through his skin. He was shoving a cat like person downwards, her fangs were bared at him. She was letting out a savage roar as she began to push the Twi'lek back. I was gaping in awe as Kylo rested his hand on my shoulder.

"Good," he shouted to the warriors. "You two are improving." The warriors retracted their blades, bowing before him. The Twi'lek strode over to me, his lips twitching with disgust.

"Ren," his accent was heavy and difficult to understand. "Why have you brought this runt to us?"

"Ravage," the cat person growled her spot, covering her head with her black hood. "We can always use a new apprentice in our ranks. Even this one. I can sense the relationship between our dear Ren and this woman. Be careful, little one. He can lose control."

Ravage snorted with a growl, following the woman out the door.

Out of pure curiosity and awe, I asked,

"Who were they?"

"They are some of my Knights of Ren. You will join them in training soon."

"But aren't I your apprentice?"

"Of course you are. You are special because though you will train and live among them, you are still my beautiful and powerful apprentice."

He took off his helmet then turned to me and planted a light kiss on my forehead.

"What did she mean by you losing control?"

He opened his mouth to explain, but the words were kicked open. Kylo quickly pulled on his helmet. From the outside stepped a man in a First Order uniform. He had sandy red hair and he wore a stern expression, completely emotionless.

"Ren." He says.

"Ah, General Hux. This is my new apprentice and Knight, Sophia."

I stepped forward and gave a silent bow to this powerful looking man. His expression softened and he smiled and said,

"Why, hello there Sophia. How are you today?"

His eyes looked me up and down with an almost predatory glance and I felt Kylo tense up next to me.

"Good day, General. I am well, and how are you?" I responded meekly.

"I am certainly better now that I have met you. Please, call me Hux."

He stuck out his hand and I reached out and shook it. He held on a little too long for my comforts. By this time Kylo was practically shaking with anger. He stepped forward and said,

"I am sorry General but Sophia and I must continue with our training."

"Ah I see. Well, Sophia, would you care to join me for dinner later? I can promise you a... Pleasurable evening." Hux said with a creepy smile.

"Unfortunately for her, she is occupied." Kylo said.

"Oh? Well last time I checked a woman can make their own decisions, Ren." Hux replied.

Kylo ignited his Lightsaber and stepped forward. He said menacingly,

"Sophia. Go to your quarters."

"Yes Master."

I quickly left the room but not before I saw Hux looking at me carefully.

"Stay away from her Hux. Or else. Do I need to say anything more?"

"Temper temper Ren. I understand that you get jealous and loose control easily, therefore I shall make my advancements when you aren't around. Hux said with a chuckle.

I had heard enough. I ran to my quarters and collapsed on to the bed, and waited for Kylo.

A million thoughts started to race through my head. They were both good and bad thoughts. What if Kylo lost control on me? Would he kill me? But then there were thoughts like Oh but he is so handsome and loves me! He would never kill me! I heard the opening of the door. "I'm glad you thinks so,"

"What?" I was confused. "Doesn't matter, we must complete your training," He came and sat next to me. His left leg touched my right leg. I gulped. He put his hand on top of mine and squeezed it gently but with a firm grip. He took off his helmet slowly. I gulped. "Are you scared of me?" His eyes met mine. I was hypnotised by the glow and sparkle of them. They shined as bright as the two suns on Tatooine. "No,"

"Yes, you are," He turned away and looked at the wall like there was something amazing happening through it that he could see. I looked at it and looked at him. "You have to be careful here Sophia,"

"What do you mean?"

"People here can be dangerous. You can only trust me at the moment, stay away from Hux. He means no good," He turned back to face me. I nodded slowly. He smiled. "You are scared of me aren't you?" I looked at him confused. He stood up and strutted towards the door. "I can sense fear in any person Sophia," I watched him. Every movement he made was perfect. I could watch him for an eternity and not get bored. As the door opened he stepped out and faced me again. "Even my own beautiful apprentice," The doors shut and I was left alone.
